

ROBERT D. WILSON, police chief in Allendale, N. J. retires at the end of the month after 17 years in the position and twenty years as a member of the police department. In 1959, he served both as police chief and as chief of the volunteer fire department, a testimonial dinner in his honor will be held on June 16; he and his wife are leaving shortly thereafter for a new home in upstate New York.

Staff photo, Matson